BY GUS MALBERT.

Petersburg, Va., April 24.—The weather man foregoes his links today, spat in his left hand, sent the cross-eyed girl back to the watering trough, and gave Petersburg a nearly ideal day in which to enjoy the first baseball opening which this town has witnessed in fifteen years. The one discordant note, from the Cockade standpoint, is that Richmond won, 4 to 1. The game started at 4:30 o'clock, when Mayor Cameron threw the first ball.

Not since 1836, when, as a part of the old Virginia League, Petersburg had a club all its own, have the natives had a chance to root for the home team. Last year, after Portsmouth had weched, the full-end team of that town was moved to Gooberville, but who could expect real people, with real red blood in their veins, to enjoy any support some other town's cast-off?

So to-day was the day set aside for the great festivities. Petersburg declared a holiday. Factories and business houses closed early so that employes could have a chance to watch Helnie Busch's Goobers defeat Jimmie Sullivan's Colts. A new ball park was waiting for the home team, and it was on this field that carnage was to be done. Again, it is a pity that the result was anything.

Crowd overflows grounds.

A crowd, the size of which can only be estimated, filled every nook and cranny of the new home of the Petersburg club. Tickets were at a premium, and many minutes before the hour set for beginning the game the authorities refused to admit any more admission badges. A long line, waiting impatiently in front of the box offices, clamored to get in, but the grounds were filled, and wisely, those in authority refused to let more get on the other side of the fence. In all, conservative members placed the crowd at 4,000.

Many Richmond fans journeyed to the other side of the Appomattox to see the game. But for their loyalty for Richmond they would have joined the great majority and wished for a Petersburg victory. It was one of the greatest, squarest, hardest rooting crowds gathered in many moons. And it never said die from the first inning to the closing chapter.

Proceeding the baseball game, a parade traversed the main thoroughfare of the city, headed by the White Ribbon Band, which played such inspiring tunes as "The Old Oaken Bucket," "Way Down Upon the Suwannee River" and others. Leading the procession in an automobile were President Williams, of the league; Owner Bradley, of the Richmond team, and President Seward, of the Cockade City Baseball Corporation. Following behind were representatives of the press and the men composing the two teams about to engage in battle.

Population Turns Out.

Lining the streets were the people who would presently make up the crowd of enthusiastic spectators at the ball park. Shouts and cheers were everywhere apparent. School girls and more mature members of the weaker sex forgot propriety and indulged in the coronation of King Baseball. To put it mildly, Petersburg was base-balled mad. Each individual had gotten every other thing in the world except that it had been fifteen years since there was a baseball team belonging to Petersburg in organized baseball, and every single individual wanted to see that first game.

Bearded individuals whose sole pastime during the dark days, when the great national game was not, forgot their erriage and their crops and journeyed out to the park to cast off a few years and rollick in the rejuvenating influence of the ball tossing season. Lucky youth bravely paraded their long line of decreed relatives, and boasted of the accomplishment which made Mr. Ananias famous. Helnie Busch took his defeat gracefully, though he never gave up, and contributed his share to the working strength of his crowd. He was a game loser, but one could not help but think what a glorious winner he would have made. President Seward voiced the sentiments of the team when he said: "We are not quitters. You may lick us, but we'll stick until a place renowned for its heated blasts is frozen over."

What a pity that it had to be won by the visitors! And what a double-edged pity it was that the visitors happened to be Richmond, than whom no opponent would have been more gratefully received in defeat! Jimmy Sullivan wanted that game, and he got what he wanted.

Barker Inevitable.

Jack Barker was selected as the moundman to turn the tide in favor of Richmond, and right well he performed his task, as the score indicates. Opposing him was the king bee of Helnie's hive of slabmen, Hamilton. That youngster pitched mean right handed game, and had been a winner but for a few things which happened.

Hamilton's greatest obstacle was Jack Barker. There is no question whether he had, and he had about everything which is listed. They all looked alike to him, and for seven innings but twenty-one men faced his delivery. With it all, he walked not a single man.

Hamilton himself pitched a beautiful game, one that will bring him home a winner nine times out of ten. But that offensive work of Richmond told. Really, the Colts outplayed Petersburg, both offensively and defensively, which tells the whole story. The Colts scored first in the third, when Barker was helped around the circuit through a kindly error and Barker's neat bent.

But that wasn't all. In the eighth Richmond scored again. It was in the close of the inning that Barker received his only worry of the game. As it turned out, worry was all that he did receive, for the best Helnie could do was to send one across the rubber, and he did it himself with his slashing two-bagger, being the fourth and last hit which the Goobers made.

Mattis's Four-Sacker.

Then came the ninth. We were 2 to 1, and one man was down. Hamilton very kindly hit Mattis, who galloped in nonchalant manner to first. Mattis was next. He waited out one, but the next, oh, the next! Somewhere out on the green reaches which border the river on which Peterstown is built they are looking for that ball. It went on its way skyward with the force of all that one Ralph Mattis, from Manoa, Del. b'gosh, could put behind it. He made the circuit, trotting jauntily behind Mattis. The game was over, and the score, instead of 2 to 1, was 4 to 1.

No need to go further into details. The game by innings follows, and this, with the box score, will tell why the biggest crowd which ever turned out to see a baseball game, outside of Richmond, left the ball park feeling mighty blue. The teams will line up about the same to-day. Hannifin will work for Petersburg, and Verhout or Lothrop will work for Richmond. Here is the game in detail, with the score.

The Game in Detail.

FIRST.

Barker hit to right. Wallace flew to left. Baker arrived at the half-way mark when Hamilton threw wild to Kellher. McCabe hit an easy one to Hamilton, who tried to get Baker at third. A pretty session ensued, in which Hamilton and Busch starred, Keating going to disgrace by missing Busch's easy throw, Baker going to third and Mc to second on the play. Baker loafed at third and was caught, Mace to Keating. Mc remained at second, as Egan puffed, pitcher to first. No runs, one hit, one left.

Devers fanned. Booe bunted and beat it out; reached second when Egan dropped Sullivan's perfect throw. Mattis made a great one-hand catch of Keating's drive to left-centre, and Booe Barker, and died. No runs, no hits, none left, one hit.

SECOND.

Martin was out on a bouncer to Keating. Mattis popped to Keating. Cowan struck at three and missed. No runs, none left, no hits.

Spencer was easy, from Egan to Cowan. Martin bowled from his name-sake to first, and Busch tried for the sky. Cowan under it. No runs, none left, no hits.

THIRD.

Sullivan grounded, Keating to Kellher. Barker traveled freely to first through Hamilton's kindness. Baker bunted and was safe, while Barker scored when Baker was hit by Keating's throw, going to second on Keating's miscue. Hamilton threw a wild one, and Baker went to third. Wallace was out on Martin's pretty trap of his line drive. No runs, one hit, one left.

Kellher breezed. Mace hardly attracted attention, and was easy; Egan to Cowan. Hamilton finished, Barker to Cowan.

FOURTH.

Truck showed his free pass and loped to the initial corner. Martin was safe on a fielder's choice, trying to sacrifice Egan, who retired, Hamilton to Busch. Mattis was safe through choice, and Martin was out, Busch to Martin. Mattis tried to steal, and was caught, Hamilton to Kellher to Busch to Hamilton. No runs, no hits, none left.

Devers walloped a fast one to Baker, but was out. Booe grounded to Cowan, unassisted. Keating smacked one to all were down. No runs, no hits, none left.

FIFTH.

Cowan laid one down third base line and was safe. He went to second on Mace's heave over second, and was out going to third, Devers to Keating, and livan flew to left. Barker finished the session by flying to centre. No runs, one hit, none left.

Spencer struck out. Martin helped Sullivan's fielding average by fouling out. Busch did what Spencer did, and all wear down. No runs, no hits, none left.

SIXTH.

Baker gave Busch a hard chance, but was out via first. Wallace bunted to Hamilton, and was easy. McCabe followed his usual procedure, and flew out to centre. No runs, no hits, none left.

Kellher helped Barker's strike-out record. Mace worried along until he was stopped, Barker to Cowan. Hamilton fouled to Sullivan. No runs, no hits, none left.

SEVENTH.

Egan singled to centre, but was caught at second when Martin was safe on a fielder's choice. Mattis drove one to Busch, and was safe as Martin went out. Cowan was left at the plate when Mattis was caught trying to steal. Mace to Martin. No runs, one hit, none left.

Devers popped to Baker. Booe poked one to centre, but was out trying to steal, Sullivan to Martin. Keating fanned. No runs, one hit, none left.

EIGHTH.

Cowan hit to left. Sullivan duplicated in the same place, and Cowan went to second. Barker laid down a beauty in front of the plate, and Cowan scored, Sullivan going to third, when Barker was safe on Martin's wild heave. Baker hit to Hamilton, and was out at first. Sullivan got caught at the plate when Barker ran him off third. Kellher making the throw, and Mace getting the put-out. Wallace flew to Busch. One run, two hits, one left.

Spencer beat out one to third, and stole second. Martin flew to Wallace. Spencer went to third on Barker's bad throw to second, and scored on Busch's double to left. Kellher was out. Egan to Cowan, and Busch went to third on the play. Mace ended all hopes by skying to Mattis. One run, two hits, one left.

NINTH.

McCabe still kept his rep., and smote madly at three. Truck bounced from Keating to Kellher. Martin was hit by Hamilton. Mattis found one to his liking, parked the ball over left field fence, and trotted around behind Martin. George went to the clearing to Busch. Two runs, one hit, none left.

Hamilton lined to Baker. Devers popped to Sullivan. Booe grounded, Barker to Cowan.

BEST FOR BISCUITS.

A prominent teacher in one of the Domestic Science schools in Mississippi writes that she is using Cottolene with excellent results. She says: "For biscuits Cottolene is all that could be desired. The biscuits are light and flaky, with none of that disagreeable odor often found in foods shortened with lard. Cottolene is also an excellent medium for frying croquettes and doughnuts. It gives them a clean, crisp, brown crust."

Other noted experts, such as Mrs. Rorer and Marion Harland, have given similar testimony to the merits of Cottolene. It not only gives better results than lard but is much more wholesome and economical as well.
